

Abstract of the Disclosure

A facsimile machine which can reduce a period of time from a transmission operation of an original document until the end of the transmission. The facsimile machine executes a parallel process of a process for accepting a start command of the process, a scanning/encoding process, a dividing process, an electronic mail generating process, and an electronic mail transmitting process.